

Are your pregnant and family planning patients making informed decisions about screening for genetic conditions?

Decisions about screening for genetic conditions before and during pregnancy are numerous, complex and emotional. Learn how to support your pregnant and family planning patients make informed choices about current screening options.

The practical information and interactive scenarios in this module will help you to:

- give accurate and comprehensive information about available screening tests
- empower patients to make informed decisions
- support patients with 'increased chance' results to understand their options.

Inform. Empower. Support.

Search for Screening tests for genetic conditions
before and during pregnancy

Course code: 538002815