

How do you recognise and manage antepartum haemorrhage, pre-eclampsia or eclampsia?

Your knowledge of how to assess, recognise and manage a maternal emergency can help to improve maternal and fetal outcomes. You can plan care, avoid unnecessary intervention and help to minimise the influence of human factors in an emergency situation.

Through the use of scenarios, job aids and practice activities, this module will help you apply your understanding to:

- identify risk factors related to antepartum haemorrhage, pre-eclampsia and eclampsia
- effectively recognise and respond to the deteriorating mother
- manage these conditions in the antenatal labour and postnatal periods
- mitigate the impact of human factors on maternal and fetal outcomes.
