

Everyone can apply the principles of trauma-informed care in their work context

Applying the principles of trauma-informed care (TIC) has the potential to improve patient engagement, health outcomes and staff wellbeing. This module will help healthcare professionals to recognise the way trauma can impact on behaviours and identify how to apply a trauma-informed approach in their work context.

In this module you will hear the principles of TIC in action. This will help you to understand how you can:

- Recognise the way trauma can impact behaviour and the ways in which people interact with each other
- Apply the principles of TIC when interacting with others
- Identify actions you can apply to ensure you work in a trauma-informed way.
