

Do you provide early childhood support to Aboriginal families?

This module will guide you through ways to engage with Aboriginal children and their families by providing safe, inclusive and responsive care.

The module is designed for healthcare professionals working with Aboriginal children, their families and communities during the period of a child's life from eight weeks to the age of five. You will have the opportunity to:

- hear what is important to families in their child's early years
- hear from clinicians and how they best support Aboriginal families in their practice
- reflect on these perspectives and build on the strengths of your own.

Provide safe, inclusive and responsive care.

Search for Supporting Aboriginal children and their families in the early years

Course code: 618263380