

Mandatory Training

Phase 2 – October 2017

Communique – Mandatory Training Medical Staff

As you are aware, HETI and the Ministry of Health have been working together to review the Mandatory Training requirements of NSW Health Medical Officers (including VMOs). It was agreed a phased implementation approach was appropriate for releasing mandatory training for medical officers.

PHASE 1

From September 2015, medical officers were required to complete Phase 1 mandatory training requirements. Phase 1 requirements remain in place.

PHASE 2

From 9 October 2017, medical officers are requested to complete the following mandatory training requirements by 31 March 2018:

- Work, Health and Safety for Medical Officers
- Infection Prevention Strategies for Medical Officers
- Safety and Quality for Medical Officers
- Violence Prevention and Management for Medical Officers
- Care Coordination for Medical Officers

These 5 modules have been developed specifically for the training needs of NSW Health medical officers, including updating previous content, amalgamation of 11 former modules and development of an overarching challenge test. The 5 modules are to be completed once only and will take between 10mins to 1hour in total to complete, representing a significant reduction in duration.

Where a medical officer has completed the training requirement they will be automatically marked complete in the system.

Please note, there may be 'mandatory training for local determination' that medical officers are also required to complete, based on their role, service or location.
